Judge halts search of Irions' computer

A judge has stopped an attempt by the Pinellas County Housing Authority to review the personal hard drive of its former director for public records. The authority sued last year, accusing Darrell Irions of withholding the records. Circuit Judge W. Douglas Baird ordered Irions in February to turn over the hard drive or explain why he shouldn't. After hearing from both sides, Baird declined to make Irions turn over the computer, but allowed the two sides to continue the discovery process in an order Tuesday.
